C. Program Description

1. Goals and Objectives

Proposals must include an American element or connection with U.S. experts, organizations, or institutions and should clearly explain the applicants' previous experience running similar programs across the Republic of Korea and the United States.

This program is designed to strengthen the bilateral relationship between the United States and the Republic of Korea by fostering collaboration on shared energy security challenges. The program aims to enhance mutual understanding, align policies, and develop actionable solutions to ensure stable, resilient, and diversified energy supplies for both nations. Through this initiative, the program will facilitate dialogue between U.S. and ROK energy policymakers, regulatory officials, and business leaders to identify vulnerabilities in energy supply chains and develop strategies to ensure reliable access to resources.

The program will include a two-week exchange program in the United States, where energy policymakers, regulatory officials, and business leaders from Korea will engage with U.S. counterparts. During this exchange, participants will visit critical energy infrastructure sites, meet with U.S. energy experts, and participate in policy dialogues to share best practices and explore collaborative solutions.

In addition to the exchange program, a series of workshops will be held in Korea to bring together U.S. and ROK experts for in-depth discussions on energy security challenges. These workshops will focus on key topics such as regulatory alignment, infrastructure development, and supply chain resilience. The sessions will serve as a platform for participants to develop actionable recommendations and strengthen bilateral cooperation, ensuring that the program's objectives are met effectively.
